Greetings from the Executive Director

Fall is an exciting time of year at the Library District as our buildings overflow with activity. You will find fascinating programs that educate and entertain; live music, theater, and dance performances from world class talent; and free classes and tutoring to help children of all ages to succeed in school.

September is also Library Card Sign-Up Month and I hope that if you haven't already done so, you will stop by your nearest library branch to get your free card. There are many designs to choose from, but my personal favorite is our Vegas Golden Knights card. (Go Knights!) All you need to get a card is a photo ID and proof of address, like a utility bill.

It's time again for Sahara West Library's 5th Annual Teen animeFEST, which takes place on Saturday, September 7. You'll find workshops, a Smash Bros. tournament, live entertainment, food trucks, and "cosplay" contests, where everyone dresses in the costumes of their favorite characters from popular culture. For more information, see page 18.

You also won't want to miss the 18th Annual Las Vegas Book Festival, which takes place at the Historic Fifth Street School downtown on Saturday, October 19. There will be special guest presentations by celebrity authors, meet and greets, book signings, and activities for all ages and interests. Visit lasvegasbookfestival.com for more information.

You probably knew that the Library District celebrates the written word in any form, but did you know that this includes comic book culture? On November 2, we will be launching the 12th Annual Vegas Valley Comic Book Festival, to be held once again at the Clark County Library. Fans will enjoy live music, panel discussions, workshops, and more. As with all of our library-sponsored programs, it is free and open to the public! See page 18 for details.

I so appreciate your comments and suggestions. Please email me at administration@LVCCCLD.org or call me directly at 702.507.6186.

Enjoy the fall season!

Helping Families Affected by Incarceration

Turn to FFIP for Support & Guidance

By Julia Lazareck

President of Friends and Family of Incarcerated Persons (FFIP)

The phone rings late at night and you get a call that you never imagined ... your loved one has been arrested and is being held in prison. Shock turns to confusion. How can you help? What are their rights? Where do you turn for answers?

What would you do if you received such a call? You may think that it could never happen to anyone close to you, but in fact, thousands of families in Clark County receive that heartbreaking call each year. And, most of them have no idea about the journey that lies ahead.

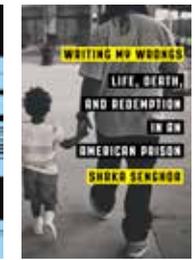

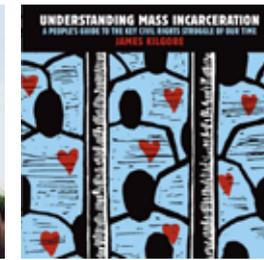

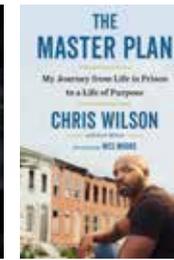

I am pleased to introduce you to our organization, FFIP (Friends and Family of Incarcerated Persons, Inc.), a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization. FFIP provides support to family members as they deal with having a loved one in the prison system. Our members have experience with the prison system and share critical information to help you and your family make good decisions while you support your incarcerated loved one.

We also work to educate the community about the effect that the incarceration of a loved one has on all family members, from grandparents to the youngest child. Those living “on the outside” (a common term for those who have a loved one “in the system”) suddenly find themselves forcibly separated from a parent, uncle, sibling, or even a close family friend. This experience often sets in motion a deep sense of grief and loss, almost like mourning a death, which impacts the entire family’s emotional well-being. When a loved one suddenly disappears from the family structure, it is not surprising to see increased rates of depression, poor work performance and job loss, and the resulting financial instability that this causes. In these ways, incarceration imposes a tremendous loss to the community as a whole, by reducing residents’ productivity and economic participation.

It may surprise you to know that there are over six million people in the prison system in America. As a result, more than five million children have experienced a parent in the prison system.* This sudden and traumatic separation has a lasting effect on children at any age, and if they are old enough to remember, the memory stays with them a lifetime.

For over 19 years, FFIP has led the way in providing information to families and friends who are often in shock that something like this could befall their close circle. But believe me, it can and does happen to people from all walks of life, and once the shock wears off, there is no process in place within the court system to walk you through the next steps. FFIP is just one of several organizations that provide concrete information on visitation policies and procedures, and what you can do when your loved one comes home.

Prison release presents a whole new set of challenges to navigate, and among them is the critical need to understand probation and parole. Since each incarcerated person has their own set of circumstances, we aren’t able to answer all of your questions in this article, but we encourage anyone who is dealing with a loved one’s incarceration to visit our website at ffipnv.org, where you will find more information, along with a list of upcoming speakers and events at the Clark County Library (see inset for dates and times). These monthly programs are free and open to the public, and will provide valuable information to educate the community, as well as those who have loved ones in the prison system.

Creating a Community of Support

FFIP is honored to be of service to people who are working their way through such a challenging time. You can contact us for information, or to volunteer, by calling 702.763.1389. We also encourage you to reach out to the organizations listed below.

Navigating you through the best of our library collection, via the recommendations of one very opinionated librarian.

By Rebecca Colbert
Head of Collection and Bibliographic Services @ The Library District

'Tis the Season to Try Something New

Recipes, crafts, and endless possibilities await this fall in our catalog

Pinterest. Tasty. BuzzFeed. Whenever I search for a recipe or craft project on the internet, I risk falling down a rabbit hole of oohing and aahing over gorgeous photos of dishes and projects that I'll never be able to recreate in my home, with my hands and supplies and limited free time. You're far more likely to see my web-inspired work on Pinterest Fail than on my Instagram story. I prefer to turn to my favorite source for all information and inspiration – the library. In autumn, the season of cooking and crafting and all things cozy and delicious, the library is here to help with wondrous adventures in achievable cuisine and doable projects.

Cooking Up Wonderful

Cookbooks are always some of our most popular items at the library, and I have some theories as to why. Browsing the internet for a recipe is quick but never easy. I get lost reading comments about how to fix the recipe or what didn't work when someone tried a low-fat version, when really, I do better just following directions from the professionals. I think another reason that people love our cookbooks is you get to dip your toe into some wonderful, sometimes weird culinary adventures and – win, lose, or draw – you get to return the cookbook to our catalogue, no commitment! And personally, I find that the experience of sitting down with a great cookbook lets me dive into the author's thought process, and I can always find something new and fuss-free to try that my kids and husband will love.

Within our voluminous catalogue of possibilities, you will find well-known authors, such as "The Pioneer Woman Cooks" series by Ree Drummond and "Giada's Italy" by Giada De Laurentiis, both of which offer deep dives into their delicious cultures. We also offer books as beautiful as the food they offer. "Ottolenghi Simple" by Yotam Ottolenghi features Middle Eastern flavors, most made in 30 minutes or less, with 10 or fewer ingredients, in a single pot, using pantry staples. "Martha Stewart's Slow Cooker" unlocks the potential of this simple appliance, while maximizing flavor and making life a whole lot easier.

A Dash of Pop Culture & Chiles

I always enjoy a little pop culture twist and these are some favorites. "The Last OG Cookbook: How to Get Mad Culinary Skills" by Tray Barker shares soulful recipes inspired by the hit TBS comedy starring Tracy Morgan and Tiffany Haddish. Morgan plays Tray, a recently released ex-convict who relies on his cooking skills to start over in a city that has gentrified since he left. For more pop culture inspired cuisine, check out YouTube star Rachel Fong's "Kawaii Sweet World Cookbook: 75 Yummy Recipes for Baking That's (Almost) Too Cute to Eat," which features easy-to-follow recipes for truly original and delicious cakes, candies, cookies, cupcakes, and more. You'll also find some sweet and spicy flavors in "Chinese Takeaway Cookbook: From Chop Suey to Sweet 'n' Sour, Over 70 Recipes to Recreate Your Favourites" by Kwoklyn Wan, who grew up in his family's Cantonese takeout restaurant.

When it's 8 p.m. and you have a craving for chocolate chili cupcakes (featuring actual chiles as a key ingredient ... trust me, you'll love it) you can always search our website 24/7 at LVCCCLD.org. A quick search for "chocolate chili cupcake recipe" delivers over 1,000 possibilities from our vast magazine and database collection. If you prefer a book, try "My Sweet Mexico: Recipes for Authentic Pastries, Breads, Candies, Beverages & Frozen Treats" by Fanny Gerson. I especially like Fany's spicy Mexican chocolate cake recipes. Next time you enter a chili cookoff, you'll be uber-prepared to bring dessert.

One browse of our digital magazine stand and you will never again be tempted by one of those foodie mags at the grocery store. We have everything a foodie could want in our Overdrive magazine collection from "Food Network" to "Clean Eating" to "Cook's Illustrated" to "Taste of Home." Our RBdigital magazine collection is equally diverse, including "Cocina Fácil" en Español, where you're sure to find more delicious ways to spice up every meal, including dessert!

Do Try This At Home

In my house, sometimes crafts and cooking overlap. I am guilty of once making an edible Easter basket out of sugar cookie dough (which went well) and finishing it with spun sugar Easter grass (which did not). My son has inherited my love of cooking crafts and insisted his working volcano for science class be made of cake. It was delicious if a bit messy, which just added to the fun. Your kids will have a blast with this and other wild recipes from the "Nerdy Nummies Cookbook" by Rosanna Pansino.

If you're looking for more creative stunts, let our CreativeBug database be your guide. CreativeBug content comes straight from the wizards at Joann's Crafts, who will dazzle you with limitless options. You'll find over 1,000 guided courses (from 10 minutes to 10 hours) for all interests, plus clever daily projects designed to teach one quick craft at a time. Just a simple search for "Halloween" in CreativeBug will lead to a burst of possibilities, from felt costume instructions and party décor ideas to pumpkin carving patterns and my favorite, a how-to video for making spooky heads in jars (you'll be the talk of the neighborhood!)

Holiday Jump Start

And yikes, if we're thinking about Halloween, can the holidays be far behind? As I contemplate yet another year zooming past me, I'm also thrilled to start making my holiday projects list. A true crafter knows that the Christmas gift-making season starts just after kids head back to school. You've got to plan the projects, map out the materials you'll need, organize your work space, factor in some start-over time and materials, then head over to the crafts store.

And yes, we have books for that! I like to start the fall craft season with "Back-to-School Projects for a Lazy Crafternoon" by Stella Fields, to give my kids a fun break from homework, help them organize their desks, and get them thinking about grandma's handmade gift this year. I especially love "Half Yard Gifts" by Debbie Shore, which shows you how to use those leftover fabric scraps for useful and adorable gifts. "Homemade Holiday: Craft Your Way through more than 40

Festive Projects" also brings the magic and memories of handmade gifts to your home. You can tap your inner Amish with "Making Inventive Wooden Toys: 33 Wild & Wacky Projects Ideal for STEAM Education" or explore "Totally Awesome Tie-Dye" for vibrantly colorful shirts, dresses, socks, bags, or fabric surface, both by Fox Chapel Publishing. Crocheting is enjoying a surge in popularity and "100 Little Crochet Gifts to Make" by Search Press Studio is perfect for both beginners and pros, featuring beautiful crocheted flowers, beanie hats, Christmas projects, cute bears, lovely hearts, and stylish purses. And I can't resist "Literary Yarns: Crochet Projects Inspired by Classic Books" by Cindy Wang. Her pint-sized Anne Shirley from "Anne of Green Gables" is positively delightful. There is a crocheted character for everyone on your list from Sherlock to Shakespeare.

So get cooking, crafting, and I wish you happy holidays in advance!

Elijah Rock

Vintage Vegas Personified

If you want to relive the legendary Las Vegas performances of Nat King Cole or Billy Eckstine, you can put on your best cocktail attire and queue up the live albums they recorded back in their days as Strip headliners.

Or you can head over to Summerlin or Windmill Libraries (tails and heels not required) to catch Elijah Rock, a performer who's keeping that vintage Vegas glitz and glamour alive and well for new generations to fall in love with. Elijah brings star power in his back-to-back engagements, that are both not to be missed!

For those who've seen Vegas! the Show at Planet Hollywood Resort & Casino, you will recognize Elijah as the talented baritone belting out hits of yesteryear. A singer, tap dancer, and all-around showman, Rock delivers swanky throwback vibes with a seven-piece orchestra on two dates: September 14 for a "A Night of Romance," and September 15 for "The Great American Songbook."

His style can be summarized by his motto: "Keeping thine eyes to the future, and thy ears to the past." His debut album, Gershwin for My Soul, for example, is comprised of contemporary interpretations of Ira & George Gershwin tunes—produced by Grammy-winner Kevin Toney of the jazz-funk outfit The Blackbyrds.

Among his accolades, Elijah was recognized with an NAACP Theatre Award for his portrayal of pioneering African American singer Roland Hayes in "Breathing and Imagination." His voice has been described as magical and versatile: "As forceful or gentle as the moment demands," wrote the Ventura County Star.

One thing is sure: Elijah's shows at the Summerlin and Windmill Libraries will feel like a trip back in time to a showroom on the Strip. Come for the romance and come back for the classic American tunes ... you'll find it all irresistibly entertaining.

Seffarine

Mediterranean & Middle Eastern Vibes

Nestled into low hills swathed by olive groves and orchards, the northern city of Fes, Morocco, is known as the country's cultural capital. At Seffarine Square—the city's blacksmithing hub established in the ninth century—the air is rich with the melodies of hammers striking metal. The beautiful environs of Fes, and Seffarine Square in particular, are major sources of inspiration for the musical group Seffarine, which performs two shows at the Library District this September.

Seffarine has received high praise for its original sound, which melds classical Arabic and Andalusian music with cultural influences from Spanish flamenco, classical Persian music, and American jazz. Their 2015 album, De Fez a Jerez, (which translates as "From Fes to Jerez," a city in Spain), was recognized by the African music blog Afribuku as one of the Best African Albums of the year. The Oregonian called them "one of Portland's most exciting bands."

While they are based in Portland, Oregon, Seffarine's collective passport would make a stamp pad run dry. Founding members Lamiae Naki (whose hometown is Fes) and Nat Hulskamp (a Portland native) have both received grants to study and perform abroad, which added to their travels. Lamiae studied classical Turkish singing in Istanbul and represented Seffarine at the Babel Med World Music Forum in Marseille, France. Nat recorded some of De Fez a Jerez in Spain with esteemed flamenco musicians.

At a Seffarine show, Lamiae and Nat perform with an ensemble to tremendous effect. Lamiae sings in Arabic, Farsi, Spanish, and French, and Nat masterfully plucks the guitar and Moroccan "oud" (similar to a lute) in his unique style. Internationally renowned bassist Damian Erskine brings a soulful groove, while master percussionist Bobak Salehi keeps the rhythm strong, and Manuel Gutierrez wows with flamenco footwork. The result is a lively and enriching musical journey throughout the Mediterranean and Middle East. Get your passport ready!

TËSSAH

Classical Piano Reimagined

Pianist and composer TËSSAH (pronounced “Tessah”) remembers the exact moment when she realized that music was her future. She was about 12 years old, having just played a piano recital. She looked out into the audience and her mom and her former teacher’s wife were both in tears.

“At first I thought something was wrong,” she recalls. [But] then they said that they were just really moved by my performance.” In that moment, TËSSAH said, it hit her. “I felt like [playing music] was my superpower. That’s what actualizes my ego. I realized that this is what I want to be doing for the rest of my life.”

Harkening back to this revelation, TËSSAH presents “Ego” a very special concert she is debuting at Windmill Library on October 13. (The backward letter “E” in her name is a reference to the number three and its significance in nature and philosophy.)

“We’re always taught to let go of your ego to become enlightened,” TËSSAH says. “But ... if you let it go, you let go of yourself ... You should hold on to your ego, cultivate it, and nourish it.”

In “Ego,” TËSSAH will showcase some of her favorite classical piano pieces against a striking backdrop of short, thought-provoking videos of her own creation in between songs. This multimedia approach is uncharacteristic of traditional classical music performances.

“Each piece represents a journey through the human mind,” TËSSAH says, explaining that her video interpretations weave the journey together. “It’s going to be a very special performance for me because it shows who I am as an artist.”

Born in Malaysia, TËSSAH has wowed audiences from an early age, taking piano lessons around the age of six, and later studying piano performance at the Glenn Gould School of Music in Toronto. She has lived and performed in Macau, London, and throughout Canada and the Bahamas, but Las Vegas is her home. She has performed across the Las Vegas Valley, including at UNLV’s esteemed Artemus Ham and Doc Rando Concert Halls. She is eager to make a bold artistic statement in her hometown.

“This [program] has been in my mind for ages,” TËSSAH said of this debut work. “In classical music, you don’t find a lot of people taking risks. I hope my art can inspire people.”

The Swing It! Girls

That Boogie-Woogie Sound

One of our most popular shows at the Library District, the Swing It! Girls return with their smooth-as-silk harmonies and boss band, just in time for Veterans Day. Their show pays homage to the vintage USO-style shows that are still wildly popular today.

Like the Andrews Sisters of the 1940s era, the Swing It! Girls are three extraordinarily talented women who sing Swing and Boogie-Woogie era music with toe-tapping energy. Their shows make audiences want to jump to their feet!

Boogie-Woogie music and dance became popular in the “Roaring 20s,” a period in the early 1900s that was defined by this cultural craze. The fast-paced beat inspired both Boogie-Woogie and Swing dancing to match, and it was the thing to do on a Saturday night. This style of music was the focus of USO (United Service Organization) shows, which traveled throughout the world to entertain the troops during World War II. The goal of these USO shows (which continue to this day) is to help ease the homesickness of our soldiers abroad by bringing a slice of pop music, fun, and home to the world’s theaters of combat. Springing from a time in history when freedom was under threat by attacks from foreign powers, Boogie-Woogie music is rooted in patriotism, a theme you will notice throughout Swing It! Girls’ performances.

“Boogie-Woogie Bugle Boy,” “Don’t Sit Under the Apple Tree,” and “Mr. Sandman,” are just a few of the familiar tunes you will hear when these ladies hit the stage, along with 15 other songs, including an a cappella finale and patriotic encore. The Swing It! Girls bring a fresh take on these timeless tunes.

If you lived through this era, it will transport you back in time, and if you’re just discovering this genre of music, it will be love at first listen!

Did you KNOW?

Exploring Your Family Tree

The Answers to Your Genealogical Questions are Found at the Library

Have you ever wondered about your family's ancestral roots? What were their countries or regions of origin? What undiscovered branches of your family tree are waiting to be uncovered? Your local library can help you find the answers to these questions and more with free genealogical research tools, the newest of which is the in-library version of Ancestry.com, Ancestry Library Edition!

Ancestry Library Edition contains billions of records, including birth, marriage, immigration, military, and death records; generations of census data; photos, maps, and much more, with new content added regularly. As a Library District customer, you can access Ancestry Library Edition from inside any of our 25 libraries on a Library District computer, or from your own device when connected to library WiFi. And if billions of records sound overwhelming, don't worry! We're here to help you in your search.

To find Ancestry Library Edition from our homepage, hover over the eResources tab on the blue navigation menu. Under "By Subject," click "More," then select Genealogy from the blue menu on the left-hand side. On this page, you will also find links to several other genealogical resources available to you with your library card, accessible from anywhere on our website LVCCLD.org, including an archive of Las Vegas Review-Journal issues 1929-1996; America's Obituaries & Death Notices, which includes roughly 90% of obituaries published in the U.S.; and MyHeritage Library Edition, which contains billions of documents and millions of photos, including more than 100 million actual gravestones. All of these resources work in tandem to help you follow the clues, wherever they lead.

On the homepage of Ancestry Library Edition, you can dive right into your search, or just get your feet wet by clicking "Learning Center" on the black navigation menu. On this page, you will find articles to guide you through the process, with tips and tricks to help you find success as you explore our databases.

While Ancestry Library Edition can only be used inside of our libraries, that doesn't mean you can't access your research elsewhere. The "Send Document" feature makes it possible for you to email your finds and view them from home. Ancestry Library Edition also includes access to hundreds of thousands of message boards, family trees shared publicly by other Ancestry members, and downloadable resources such as ancestral charts, research calendars, and source summaries to organize your work.

Start your ancestry exploration the next time you visit one of our libraries, and watch your family story unfold. With these tools, and the help of our staff, you are sure to uncover something fascinating!

Teen animeFEST

Teen animeFEST 2019 Logo Contest Winner
Stacey, 10th Grade | Sahara West Library

Saturday, September 7
10:30 a.m. - 4 p.m.
Sahara West Library
9600 W. Sahara Ave.

Anime and manga are two wildly popular forms of Japanese comic strip art, drawn for animation and print. Teen fans flock from all across the Valley to attend this awesome annual event, filled with friends, tons of information about new trends, live music, and of course, food trucks to fuel the fun. Throughout the day, teens are invited to attend comic book writing workshops, video game tournaments, anime viewing sessions, and create their own anime-themed crafts.

Perhaps the highlight of the day is the "Cosplay Fashion Show," where attendees dress up in costumes as their favorite characters from books, movies, TV shows, comics, etc., and attend the equivalent of a runway fashion show!

A mix of pop culture and Japanese-style pop art, anime themes or genres include ninja, martial arts, the supernatural or horror stories, romance, and science fiction including robots and spaceships.

For teens just starting their anime hobby, or for those who have been fans for years, there will absolutely be something for everyone! This FREE event is the only one of its kind in Las Vegas, and is only open to teens and their parents or caregivers.

Check out our full listing of events & programs at LVCCLD.org/events

Room Rentals @ The Library

You've got the Vision, We've got the Venue.

Looking for a cool space to host your upcoming party, performance, sales meeting, or social event? The Library District has a variety of meeting rooms and performing arts centers available to rent at very competitive rates. Our spaces are designed to accommodate group sizes as small as 10 and as large as 399, and are perfect for all types of events.

These spaces have been available in our library buildings for many years but making a room reservation online just became much easier! In the fall, we will be launching a new online reservation platform through LVCCLD.org, which will allow you to view photos of each of our rental spaces throughout the Library District, get detailed information about our performing arts centers, and even make multiple bookings, all with just a few clicks.

Below are the types of venues that we offer:

Meeting Rooms:

- 21 spaces conveniently located in 14 branches across the district
- Projection systems available in select venues
- Cost: $30 per hour
- Rental requests can be made online or in person

Performing Arts Centers:

- Six theaters throughout the valley
- Lighting, sound, projection systems included in rentals
- Cost: $40 per hour
- Additional charges apply for technical and security staff and special requests
- Bookings by appointment only

Reservations are accepted on a first-come, first-served basis. Meeting rooms may be reserved up to six months in advance and performing arts centers may be reserved up to one year in advance. Get all the information you need at LVCCLD.org/rental-facilities.

The Library District is proud to provide these top quality venues to bring local residents together to share information, attend programs, experience personal and educational fulfillment, and connect with friends both old and new.

We'll see you soon at the library!
