“Hopefully, the library will open up soon and I could go back and be amongst my friends - the books.”

“I just feel so sad that with this COVID-19 the library is closed. I usually take out about twenty books at a time and I read them all. Unfortunately, I read all those books and they're neatly in my bag ready for me to take back to the library. Hopefully, the library will open up soon and I could go back and be amongst my friends - the books. That's my world and COVID-19 disturbed that for a little while. I hope the libraries will open up soon and they will allow a few people in. I'll be able to get my books and read again, because I much prefer to read than watch TV..I just hope that everybody recovers from COVID-19. I'm considered very high-risk because I'm in my 70s and not in the best of health. I haven't been anywhere—I can't go anywhere. My grandchildren leave groceries for me in the foyer and letters, actual letters. Do you remember letters? I still write letters to people and believe it or not, they write back! I don't have a computer, I don't have a cellphone, I don't have email—and once again—I connect with people by writing letters. I don't want any of these emojis or whatever they call them. I want somebody to actually write me a letter and for me to write back. My grandsons know that and they do that for me. On my birthday or Christmas, or whatever, they send me cards and they write letters inside those cards. I collect those cards and I treasure them because the words that are in those cards mean a lot to me. So, I just wanted to share this with everybody. Yes, it's a bad world out there right now, but I think that we have to remain upbeat. You know, I sit here and I watch my squirrels and the little skunk who comes at night. I don't know if it's a lady skunk or a man skunk because it comes at night. When I cook during the day, I cook a little bit extra for Mr. Skunk or Mrs. Skunk and I put it out on the patio in a dish. Yeah, that's my story.”
